

Six Common Mistakes New Industrial Designers Make

When you are in your meeting, write things down to commit them to memory. Then prioritize and set specific time allowances to each task with a due date.

Create a schedule and stick to it to maximize productivity!

Set reasonable expectations with your clients. Under-promise and over-deliver!

By showing your thinking, it leaves room for new ideas and interpretation to encourage collaboration.

Measure twice, cut once!

Take time every day (just a minute or two) and make sure your work space is clean. This will make you more productive and save you time and eventually money!
